Coursework | Students enroll in five courses in this summer program:
The program begins with four-weeks of instruction on Contemporary India divided into four courses: Indian Politics, Indian Economy, Indian Sociology, and Indian History for 2 UC quarter units each. The courses are taught by local faculty and include guest lectures by renowned experts in their field.
The final two weeks is a fieldwork course for 4 UC quarter units in which students volunteer with community development initiatives and explore a topic of their choice. The majority of service placements are in rural educational settings. Students also see local government in action at this level and interact with the area's tribal communities. | Students enroll in two courses:
• Core course on India: The core course examines various facets of life and work in India and introduces basic Hindi language. Course excursions within Mumbai and lectures by local experts augment classroom instruction, illustrate social, economic and cultural situations and provide opportunities to observe topics discussed in class. This core course is worth 6 UC units of upper-division credit.
• Internship placement with academic credit through a UC online course: Students undertake academic internships with local Mumbai organizations or companies on projects related to their academic and career interests. Examples of previous placements include housing and community development, health services, education, human rights, sustainable design, and arts therapy. Internships are facilitated by the Academic Internship Council (AIC). Students will be enrolled in a UC internship course to document their service activities, reflection and engagement with the organization, with journal entries during the course and a paper at the end of the program. The full-time internship is worth 12 UC units of upper-division credit.

Units | 12 UC quarter units | 18 UC quarter units

Calendar | • Summer: late June to mid-August | • Fall: early September to mid-December

Housing | During the four-week academic session, students stay in a residence hall on a twin-sharing basis. The rooms are air-conditioned. Each room has a private bath.
During the two-week fieldwork experience, students stay in shared rooms in guest houses. | Students live in a group residence convenient to the city center and easily accessible via public transportation. Accommodations are fully furnished and include kitchen facilities, access to laundry, and internet connection. Bedrooms are typically doubles. Breakfast and dinner are provided.

Study in New Delhi, the nation's capital and economic hub with timeless architecture and history. Learn about India's impressive history and demographic diversity through coursework, lectures, and volunteer service activities. With majestic landmarks, divergent places of worship, and countless museums, Delhi's visual riches complement your learning and deepen your understanding of the nation's culture, heritage, and development challenges.

Study in Mumbai, one of the world’s fastest growing, largest cities, and home to Bollywood. Come to understand India -- its complexities and heritage, modern industries and traditions, its current and potential contributions to our world -- as you serve alongside those who are working to develop India's future.

The Academic Internship Council (AIC) is a non-profit organization that partners with colleges and universities to build and implement customized, academically-directed internship programs. They provide short-term internships with a range of organizations, from multinational corporations to small start-ups. Placements are designed to integrate work experiences with academic courses and cultural and professional development opportunities.
