Live in St. Petersburg and take courses taught by St. Petersburg State University faculty with other U.S. students. A rich program of cultural activities supplements your classes, including local and regional excursions and visits to museums and historical sites. There are also opportunities to participate in volunteering. Fall, Spring, and Year programs include overnight field trips each semester. Most participants live with a Russian family in a private apartment and have their own room, but a limited number of private rooms in hostels are also available. Homestays are the best way to meet Russians, learn about their culture and daily life, and practice speaking Russian. Host families also provide 2 meals a day on weekdays and lunch on weekends.
